Bob Sarlatte, once field announcer for the San Francisco 49ers and reporter on Entertainment Tonight, is an observational comic and his look and material put you in mind of Jay Leno. Both comics are tall, dark haired, fast paced, and they each have that something about them that makes you willing to laugh from the moment he walk onstage. Unlike Leno, Sarlatte talks about his parents, his kids, going to the ball game, and people he meets at the racetrack. He is a naturally funny fellow mouthing off in an appealing way about his life. The San Francisco Chronicle says, "Sarlatte is a cut above the pack... you walk out not only laughed out, but liking him personally — he puts heart in his humor without leaving out the laughs."
