

John Pinette

John Pinette

The secret to John Pinette's success must be that he talks about food. He says it's the perfect common ground--everybody eats! With a body like Pavarotti and a singing voice like Tiny Tim, John began his comedy career doing vocal caricatures of celebrities such as Robin Leach and the chipmunks singing Bon Jovi. Prior to his success as a comedian, he had what his family calls a 'real world' job as an accountant. Luckily for us, he realized his true calling and headed back to comedy..making us laugh ever since. He has opened for Frank Sinatra, The Pointer Sisters, Miami Sound Machine, Terrence Trent D'Arby, Howie Mandell, Ray Charles, and Michael Bolton. His success led to numerous television and film appearances, including a role on Fox TV's Parker Lewis. John's diverse roles include appearances in films such as Reckless Kelly and the TV movies Revenge of the Nerds IV and VII and Thanksgiving Day. He was the referee on the syndicated series Grudge Match, shared a scene with Arnold Schwarzenegger and Danny DeVito in Junior, and is featured in the Garry Marshall-directed comedy Dear God, starring Greg Kinnear. Recently, John was awarded the American Comedy Festival award for best male stand up of the year..and you might have seen him on the final episode of "Seinfeld" as the carjack victim.
